3. All the information and identity data given in these messages (post office boxes, email or phone numbers) are fake, and they don't match in any way with the PMI's scope of operation.
4. When you receive emails, never trust any commercial communication with a domain different than @pmcim.com. PMI never communicates business issues from domains such as @outlook.com, @hotmail.com or @gmail.com.

Tips to defend yourself against these scams

1. Don't trust these messages (especially when transaction prices are significantly different than the market trend). Make sure that the address and phone numbers are the same as the ones published in www.pmi.com.mx. If you have any question, contact PMI-CIM to verify the message received.
2. Don't pay or give any amount in advanced and never give any personal or financial information without being completely sure who you are giving it to.
3. Finally, always keep in mind that these phishing networks or scam are used to work from other countries different than the addressee and that makes it very difficult to investigate and solve the crimes committed.
